Kehl. For the coming 2025 season, Bürostner has combined its extremely successful all-wheel drive models with its bestselling Black Forest design. The result is the Lineo C 4x4 Black Forest, a smart Ford Transit finished in the anthracite-coloured "Magnetic Metallic", with all-wheel drive, Black Forest design features and a 130PS engine that can be (optionally) upgraded to a 165PS version.

All-wheel drive for the "last mile"

Thanks to the 4x4 drive, active van owners who enjoy travelling cross-country over rougher terrain can easily reach their favourite spots. Whether a damp meadow or a country lane, due to the intelligent all-wheel drive (iAWD) system, no off-road route is off-limits for the Lineo C 4x4. The system constantly monitors the traction on changing surface conditions and automatically adapts the torque vectoring, i.e. the power distribution, to improve the vehicle's handling and stability.

Flex or Premium – what would you like?

The chassis is available to order with the basic features Flex (standard) or Premium (optional). Those content with the Flex features get their Lineo C 4x4 with a 130PS engine and manual transmission, as well as additional chassis comfort elements such as the multimedia system FORD Sync 4-Infotainment with a 12" touch screen. The more extensive, optional Premium version includes features such as, for example, an upgraded 165PS engine, on top of the Flex features.

Two layouts with many comfort highlights

The Lineo C 4x4 is available in two layout versions: Lineo C 590 and Lineo C 550, both familiar from the current Lineo C model range. The Black Forest Edition transforms the look of the Lineo C 4x4's interior with an attractive range of upholstery choices, an additional hanging bag in the sleeping area, special cushions and a matching fitted sheet on the fixed bed - all featuring the captivating Black Forest design. The unobstructed sight line and the extremely generous headroom result in an exceptional sense of space. Both layouts are equipped with a compact bathroom, including a toilet, and offer plenty of sitting and sleeping comfort. An optional indirect lighting package makes life in the Lineo C 4x4 truly eye-catching.

Sporty exterior design for adventurers

Even the exterior look of the Lineo C 4x4 Black Forest is already very special: The anthracite-coloured paint finish "Magnetic Metallic" with the contrasting light grey Black Forest graphics looks sporty. The black 16" alloy wheels and the spoiler protection guard emphasise the exclusive look.

The new Lineo C 4x4 Black Forest will be presented to the public for the first time at Bürstner's exhibition stand, D03, in Hall 6 at the Caravan Salon in Düsseldorf.
